

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Lunchinars' new website connects speakers and learners

DURHAM REGION, DECEMBER 7, 2011: Lifelong learning is the today's key to success. If you're a learner, how do you find the time? How do you find the speakers? How do you find the topics? And if you're a speaker, how do you fill the seats? How do you find the opportunities?

Lunchinars solves these problems for both learner and speaker with its new online platform. Lunchinars is a continuing education hub for live and on-demand webinars and in-person presentations. Convenient and easy-to-use, it gives speakers a place to list their events, promote their skills and topics, and find speaking opportunities. Learners can browse the searchable database and sign up for the events they want to attend—with no membership required.

No passport? No problem. Lunchinars bridges the distance between speaker and learner. With webinars, experts from around the world bring their wisdom right to your computer. Top-notch speakers can share their message and specialized skills with a broader market, without the time and expense of travel. And thanks to social media notifications, you'll never miss another must-see speaker or cutting-edge presentation again.

Lunchinars supports and promotes their valued pool of speakers. Presenters can set up an online profile, post their topics and events, and contribute to articles to the Lunchinars blog. They can also tap into a broad range of event support and resources like presenter training, recording, moderation and management. No time? Hand off administrative details such as posting, registration and setup for your event to Lunchinars. No website? No problem. Lunchinars can set one up. Receive basic services at no cost or sign up for the platinum service time-limited special—$99/year.

It's all waiting at www.lunchinars.com, where first-rate speakers and enthusiastic learners connect.
